Day 3 – Hoq Cave & Dihamri Marine protected Area.

Early morning after breakfast we make our way to explore the largest cave in the middle east. The Caves on the island of Socotra are many varied in terms of size, shape and location. But there is Cave that even if you are one of those who do not give interest in exploring caves, this Cave will captivate you to discover it yourself because it is worth a visit. It is Hoq Cave the Hoq cave which is located in the northeast of the Island. Hoq Cave consider as the largest one on Socotra.

Hoq Cave is a remarkable natural wonder with an abundance of stunning crystal formations and speleothems. Speleothems, such as stalactites, stalagmites, and calcite floors, are created over thousands of years in caves through the slow deposition of minerals. These formations can vary in size, shape, and colour, and they often create a breathtaking and otherworldly environment inside caves. Finally, even those not so interested in spelunking activities will leave Hoq Cave thoroughly impressed. To take adventure to reach to the cave from the village. It is mandatory to take bottle of water, a headlamp or torch flashlight with you and a local guide who used to about that place and have experience and valuable information and exploration about the area and inside the cave as it can be dangerous and easy to lost.

Along the way up to the cave, you will see rare trees and wonderful plants, and while you are at the top of the mountain, you will overlook a vast water and a view that will live in your mind for the rest of your life.

The duration from village to the cave about one hour and forty minutes to reach to the entrance of the cave, but it deserves a visit. Without exaggeration the cave will amaze you. While cave's interior about three kilometres long.

After that we go back to our cars to keep going driving to Dihamri Marine protected Area. There find the satiable place to make diving and snorkelling. there you can find out a wide variety of marine life, colourful fish, sea turtle and reef sharks. Overnight and Dinner in Dihamri camp. There you can find Toilet and shower path.
